Subject: Motivation Letter for Internship at FES Bangladesh

Greetings,

I'm writing to Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung (FES) Bangladesh to convey my interest in the internship opportunity. I am excited to make a significant contribution to FES's mission of advancing social democracy through inclusive dialogue, environmental justice, and equitable economic development. I have a multidisciplinary academic background in soil, water, and environment from the University of Dhaka, as well as practical experience in data analysis, community engagement, and public-oriented research.

I have concentrated on initiatives that touch on FES's main theme areas throughout my academic and research career. In addition to conducting fieldwork, I co-authored many publications that are currently undergoing peer review as part of my work with the Atomic Energy Center, which covered environmental health risk evaluations of heavy metals in river systems. My technical communication, policy understanding, and analytical thinking have all improved as a result of this experience; these are abilities that are essential for supporting FES's advocacy and capacity-building initiatives.

FES's approach to environmentally and socially responsible economic practices really appeals to me. In order to help vulnerable people, I wanted to bridge the gap between science and policy, which is why I conducted research on soil carbon dynamics and groundwater arsenic poisoning. This, in my opinion, fits in nicely with your current work on economic policy and climate justice, where a data-driven, collaborative approach is crucial.

In addition to my academic background, I have more than 1.5 years of grassroots involvement and stakeholder collaboration experience. I have also developed a good command of leadership, intercultural teamwork, and communication as a Section Leader in Stanford University's Code in Place program. I intend to use the attention to detail and mission-drivenness that these experiences have given me to enhance FES's program activities and event coordination and communication.

I am confident that this internship will be a valuable platform for me to deepen my understanding of inclusive governance and advocacy while contributing constructively to FES's impactful work. I am especially motivated to learn from your cross-sectoral collaborations with trade unions, civil society, and government institutions and to support your efforts in advancing policy reforms that center justice and equity.

Thank you for considering my application. I have attached my CV, application form, and supporting documents as requested. I look forward to the opportunity to contribute to your team.

Warm regards,

Md Rakib Hasan
