Hiring Manager
Oxfam
Dhaka, Bangladesh

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my sincere interest in contributing to Oxfam. As a passionate and performance-driven graduate in Soil, Water, and Environment from the University of Dhaka, I bring with me over four years of experience in data analysis and more than two years of interdisciplinary research focused on environmental health, sustainability, and community development—values that deeply align with Oxfam’s mission to fight inequality and empower communities.

My academic and professional journey has equipped me with strong analytical and problem-solving skills. I’ve led and collaborated on projects related to water quality forecasting, arsenic pollution modeling, and environmental health risk assessments. These projects not only demanded scientific rigor but also required community engagement, stakeholder collaboration, and clear communication—critical components of successful humanitarian work.

Beyond technical expertise, I have 1.5 years of experience in volunteer work, where I helped organize technical mentorship workshops for young technology enthusiasts. This role enhanced my ability to design inclusive educational content and foster local engagement, aligns with Oxfam's commitment to education and empowerment.

I am particularly inspired by Oxfam’s holistic approach to tackling poverty and injustice through evidence-based solutions, policy influence, and grassroots action. I would welcome the opportunity to contribute my skills in data analysis, project coordination, research, and community engagement to support your ongoing and future initiatives.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how my background and values align with the impactful work being done at Oxfam.

Warm regards,
Md Rakib Hasan
